WISE AND OTHERWISE.

It is easy to get along with the fellow who is never short.

While marriage is the tie that binds it has been known to slip.

About the only thing a fellow can catch while standing still is his breath.

A strange thing about bargains is that the fellow who sells them gets rich quicker than the one who buys them.

SOMEWHERE IN_____

"THE INHABITANTS OF [Blank] are of a higher order; akin, we are told, to men of the golden age. They are simple in their lives and value practical wisdom rather than human learning. Of the science [of which we make so much] they know nothing whatever, nor have they any desire to know.

"[Blank] is densely populated, but as it is extremely fertile and as the people desire no more than suffices for the necessities of life, there is no scarcity." x x x

"The people are associated in clans, families and households; and their habitual intercourse is confined to their own kindred. No one ever desires another's goods, nor does it ever enter the mind of anyone to covet any of the goods of another, much less to obtain them by artifice, and still less to attack and plunder them. It was so in the golden age. The love of self was then far away. Everyone rejoiced in his own and not less in another's good. But in the course of time this scene was changed and totally reversed, when the lust of exercising dominion and of possessing many things invaded the mind of man."

Intercourse with the inhabitants of [Blank] is thus described. "Their approach when they crme to me, their stay and their influence at the time were so gentle and sweet as to be inexpressible. The tranquility and delightsomeness with which they inspired me sensibly filled my breast and heart; at the same time the longings and anxieties about the future which cause disquiet and wretchedness, and agitate the mind with various passions, were removed."

"Their faces are like the faces we know, fair and beautiful; sincerity and modesty shine from them. So expressive are they that facial movements form the principal means of communicating thought; verbal speech being only accessory. In this again [our explorer remarks] they are like the primitive inhabititants of the earth. In the most ancient or primeval times sincerity prevailed, and no one cherished a thot which he was not willing should shine forth out of his face. So long as sincerity and rectitude prevailed among men, such speech continued; but as soon as the mind began to think one thing and the tongue speak another, which was the case when man began to love himself and not the neighbor, verbal speech began to increase, the face being either silent or deceitful. The inhabitants of [Blank] are careful as far as is possible to face those about them; they gladly desire that their face should be seen because their mind appears from it, for they never show a face at variance with the mind, nor have they the power to do so."

"The inhabitants of [Blank] are much wiser than we. They have highly developed the imaginative part of thought. They say of us that we talk much and think little, and therefore cannot interiorly perceive many things, and cannot even perceive what good is. Only with difficulty, says the explorer, could it be explained to them how we record knowledge for future use in printed books, which are unknown to them. They thought knowledges in our countries were on papers and not so much within the man himself, thus derisively insinuating, that the papers so to speak, know more than the man."

"Plain living and high thinking are combined in these people. They informed me that they do not prepare their food to please the palate but chiefly for the sake of use; they added that to them the food that is wholesome is savory."

(Our explorer here suggests that it would be well for us to observe this rule and thus insure having a sound mind in a sound body. It is otherwise with those whom the taste rules. The body then becomes diseased, at least it becomes inwardly feeble, consequently so does the mind. For the mind comports itself according to the interior state of the recipient parts of the body, as sight and hearing do according to the state of the eye and ear. Hence the folly of placing all the delight of life in luxury and pleasure; for this too causes dulness in such things as belong to thought and judgement.)

"The (Blank) ians are simple also in the matter of dress. In their warm lattitudes they wear little clothing. Nor are they ashamed of their nakedness, for their minds are chaste. Their worship is without forms and ceremonies. They have no holy days but every morning at sunrise and every evening at sunset they perform holy worship in their tents, and also after their manner, sing sacred songs. They do not fear death except on account of leaving wife, children or parents. They know that they shall live after death; wherefore they do not call death dying but being heaven made. Those who have lived in true marriage love and have taken such care of their children as becomes parents, do not die of disease but tranquilly as in sleep and so pass from the world into heaven."

We regret to disappoint our readers by withholding the name and location of the country treated of in the rather startling quotation of a noted explorer printed above. It seems indeed incredible to us that in this day and age there could be such a country and such a people. Inasmuch, however, as such a country would undoubtedly be considered a "backward" country, and a knowledge of its whereabouts would immediately precipitate a stampede for oil, mineral, water-power, and other concessions, our somewhat idealistic explorer has strictly conditioned the use of the quotation upon our solemn promise to withold the name and location of the country.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB MEETS

Boulder Creek Improvement Club held its regular meeting Monday evening with president Geo. L. Gordon presiding. Mrs. Woodard not able to be present. Mr. Leake was chosen secretary pro tem.

Owing to the fact that holding the Club meetings on Monday evening conflicted with the meetings of the Rebekah Lodge, it was voted to hereafter hold the meetings Tuesday night making it more convenient to attend.

An invitation to attend the Farm Bureau meeting at Felton, and it is hoped that the near future will see many from here attending these very valuable and interesting meetings.

The Welfare Committee reported a glorious Get-to-gether with an impromptu program of entertainment and light refreshments after the next meeting, which will be held in Foresters Hall, Tuesday evening, Dec. 13th.

The discussion on a clean-up day for Town and immediate vicinity showed full approval and will be considered at the meeting in Foresters Hall next Tuesday evening.

PERSONALS

Mr. Leo Alfano has returned from San Francisco.

Miss Irene Pilger is visiting the Eberhards in Santa Clara.

Mr. Stevenson and sons have arrived from Canada and are staying with Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Newlin. Mr. Stevenson will make his home in California, and we hope at Boulder Creek.

A. D. Holm has recently become a partner in the grocery business started by Walter C. Grant and successfully carried on by him under the slogan of Grants Cash & Carry, a name known throughout the valley. The new firm will be known as Grant and Holm.

COME OUT

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the Boulder Creek Improvement Club will meet in Forester's hall. After the business meeting an informal program will take place and refreshments will be served.

Do not fail to come out and bring your friends as this social evening is bound to be productive of many good results and several interesting projects are to be discussed.

A number of the people of Boulder Creek, Ben Lomond and other neighborhoods along the line of highways attended the Farm Bureau meeting in Felton last Tuesday at which Miss Anne Mc Cormick, home demonstration agent now connected with the Santa Cruz bureau talked about the work planned for the year.

Miss Harriet Eddie state leader of home demonstration work, Mrs. Bessie Pittroff, Director Elisha Brooks, W. H. Nicholson, A. W. J. Gibbs and Dr. Jessie Farmer were among others who addressed the meeting.

A Felton Branch of the San Lorenzo Valley Farm Center was organized and tempting refreshments served.

Community Mention.

The highway which is to be extended between Ben Lomond and Boulder Creek is well under way. The workers have cleared away trees and brush and a great deal of the bank has been removed in order to widen the road.

The bridges from Boulder to the Big Basin are just about finished. The county has done its part. Now will the state do their's and build a highway? It will surely be a boon for Boulder Creek when that highway is complete.

Mr. Mrs. W. T. Ralston motored to San Francisó last Saturday morning on a business trip.

The annual chrismas fair which is to be held at the High School on December 16 th, is well under way. There will be dancing, contests, a tea garden weener and candy booths and sale of lunch baskets.

"How do you manage to make both ends meet?" we said to the happy little housekeeper. "Oh, but I don't make both ends meet," she corrected. "I keep house like the United States, and never make ends meet." "Like the United States?" we queried, puzzled. "Yes; I get what I want whether I can afford it or not, and then at the end of the year I give my husband a deficiency bill. You know; just like Congress does every session, to make the public think it has lived within its income."—Whereat we were lost in admiration.—Leslie's.

CLUB TO MEET FIRST AND THIRD TUESDAYS

Ben Lomond Improvement Club held its regular December meeting last Tuesday evening with president A. H. Townsend presiding. One might have thought by the attendance that eats, or entertainment was the program but this time it was simply a matter of business and many things of interest were given consideration.

Resolutions of thanks presented by Mr. Walker were to Mr. E. Moore for the fine collection of photographs donated to the club; to Mr. Rankin for the job of repair work he did on the drinking fountain, which has been Prohibition for some time; and to an anonymous donator of $5 00 in cash for club benefit.

A committee of ladies, with Mrs. Will Paradis chairman, was appointed to keep things in order about the club house, and to take charge of all entertainments, etc.

A. H. Townsend was appointed chairman of a publicity committee to report at the next meeting of the club.

Mr. Reuff had several suggestions to make with a view to increasing club membership and providing funds for the club's use which finally resulted in Mrs. Atkinson making a motion to have a committee appointed to solicit members. Mr. Bartlett was made chairman of this committee with every one now a member of the club as a member of the committee.

Mr. Nicholson introduced a resolution to have the meeting time changed from the first Tuesday in month to the fiirst and third Tuesday evenings so that the club will meet, hereafter, every two weeks except in the months which have five Tuesdays.

Mr. Thomas Hessy reported that Mr. Hughes of the Water Company had donated the water rent for the Town Hall for the years of 1921— 1922.

A lighting committee was appointed to take up the matter of having lights as a result of direct taxation instead of by subscription as here-to-fore.

Mr. Silvey reported that the work of putting a new roof on the Town Hall would be completed Wednesday night.

The meeting was one of unusual interest and people reluctantly departed for their homes after adjournment was taken.

Card of Thanks.

About a month ago, attracted by the beautiful scenery of the San Lorenzo Valley, I decided to re-open the Boulder Creek Bakery which had been closed for several years, when of course everybody had to depend on Bakery Goods brought in from outside towns,

I take this means of heartily thanking those who have patronized my effort to re-establish the Bakery, which to Judge by the number, I believe I have by using the very best materials, been able to turn out the superior quality of goods, which together with a clean place and courteous service have given satisfaction to a majority of the people.

Now regarding the use of shipped in Bakery Goods in town. Do you ever look at it this way? How much money does the San Francisco or Santa Cruz bakery spend here in town? Absolutely none.

I have spent here in town during the first month's operation of the Bakery, more than $300.00 cash for help, wood, fruit and other things, and will continue to spend similar sums every month, which will be more or less to the benefit of all in town.

Therefore I beg of you in the interest of the home town, do not consider the Home Bakery as an emergency hospital; that is, if you cannot get it anywhere else— "Oh! well, we can get it at the Bakery," or to come to the Bakery with a loaf of shipped in bread under your arm and ask for a dime's worth of doughnuts, if you can get them hot.

If you wish the home Bakery to succeed, co-operate with the baker and insist that your store keeper handles bread and other bakery goods from the Home Town Bakery, and you can always depend on receiving the same superior quality goods as at the Bakery counter, which are just as good as any and better than others, and fresh every day.

Yours for Business

Julius Kirsten Boulder Creek Bakery.

P. S. If I buy out of town and you buy out of town, what will become of our town?

DOUTED HIS WORD

When the Widow Mingus came into Andy White's store for her weekly supply of groceries the front of her dress was disfigured with splotchy bars of red paint.

"How did you ever come to get that, Mrs. Mingus?" asked Mr. White.

"I was leaning over that Sandy Bevan's fence to look at a hog," angrily answered the widow.

"But Sandy has a big sign up," put in Deacon Petty, "Wet Paint—Sandy Bevan."

"I saw that," snapped the widow, "but everybody knows what a liar he is"—Toronto World.
